REMARKS

25X1

1. It was observed on 10 March 1951 that a railroad siding was being laid toward the north from the Damngarten (N 55/P 13) railroad station. this was to become a spur track to Puehnitz (N 55/P 13) airfield. the work was being pushed so that the completion of the trackage could be expected by late May 1951.

2. on the 8th of March the area of the field, including the workshops of the Roddenwerft, were surveyed by groups of Soviets which were composed of officers and civilians. This group which had allegedly surveyed the bay area had finished its work and left.  construction material was being hauled to the airfield.
